

Bartlett Cove is the only developed area within Glacier Bay. The forests and shorelines offer great hiking opportunities. Several easy trails begin here. Spend some time, stretch your legs, and discover the wonders of your park.

Explore the Shore

Distance and time varies

The shoreline beyond the docks continues for many miles past the campground. You may observe land and marine wildlife. Watch for sea otters and listen for the blow of humpback whales. Watch your time and head back when you choose. Let the magic of Glacier Bay draw you in for an hour, or even a day.

Bartlett River Trail

Distance: 4 miles round-trip

Time: 4-5 hours

Explore a dense spruce-hemlock rain forest. The maintained trail through the forest ends at an estuary near the mouth of the river. Many choose to keep hiking further up the river. Each summer spawning salmon attract hungry otters, eagles, seals, and bears. Anglers enjoy fishing there too.

Bartlett Lake Trail

Distance: 10 miles round-trip

Time: 7-8 hours

About 3/4 mile down the Bartlett River Trail you'll find the lake trail, a branch trail that climbs the moraine. This primitive trail is a rugged day-hike. During this full-day journey, you may be richly rewarded in wilderness solitude and perhaps the call of loons.

Bring lunch, water, and rain gear.

This trail is also accessible from the Towers Trail at the park boundary. The first 1.7 miles provides an opportunity for biking down the old roadbed that once serviced an airport tower beacon.
